

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 01 Sep 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Generally dry and fine for most of England and Wales with good spells of sunshine. However, cloudier and windier conditions further north, with a band of rain affecting Northern Ireland and Scotland, and northern England later in the afternoon. Overnight, the rain band will sink southwards into England and Wales, with showers feeding into Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

On Friday, cloud and rain will move slowly south-eastwards through England and Wales, with sunshine and showers developing in the north-west of the UK. Then, after a fine start for most on Saturday, wet and windy weather will arrive from the west.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.