++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Early cloud in parts of England and Wales will clear with most places sunny and dry this morning. Scotland and Northern Ireland will be cloudier this morning and this cloud spreads south into England and Wales this afternoon, evening and overnight. There is a chance of isolated outbreaks of rain, mainly in the east. Breezy, especially in the southeast.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Much of the United Kingdom will be cloudy at first on Wednesday, but sunny periods are expected to develop in many places during the day. However, eastern Scotland is likely to remain cloudy. Further sunny periods are expected on Thursday.
