Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Many areas will be dry with variable amounts of cloud and a few sunny spells mixed in, these particularly across central areas such as Wales and the Midlands. Thicker cloud over northern Scotland may bring a little rain in places, and still feeling rather chilly in the south with gentle northeasterly winds.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Remaining mostly dry and rather cloudy for many areas, with patchy drizzle in places and brighter spells mixed in. There's a better chance of seeing the sunshine later Monday, particularly in the south of the UK. Still a risk of frost and fog under clear spells overnight.
