Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Wednesday will see largely cloudy skies across much of the UK, coupled with outbreaks of light rain, sleet and perhaps hill snow drifting in from the east. It will be brighter further west, with patchy fog slowly lifting to allow sunny spells later, though feeling rather chilly for all.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

The cold theme looks set to continue into Thursday and Friday. There will be widespread overnight frosts and a scattering of showers across eastern counties, with some of the showers turning wintry at times. Meanwhile, it will be generally drier and brighter in the west.
