

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Wednesday 12 Mar 2014

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Morning mist and low cloud will linger into the afternoon across some central parts and some southern coasts. Otherwise another sunny and warm feeling day is expected for most. Overnight, further low cloud, mist and patchy fog is expected, and this likely to become more widespread than previous nights. However where skies remain clear a frosty night is likely.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Thursday starts grey, with mist and fog slowly lifting. Most places becoming brighter and warmer by the afternoon, although some light rain and thicker cloud expected across northwest Scotland. This cloud then spreads southwards overnight, leading to cloudier day on Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2014. Published by the Met Office.