Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be a chilly start across northern and some central parts with patchy frost and fog, however there will be plenty of sunshine throughout the day. In contrast, the south will be cloudier and in the far southwest it will become windy. Eastern coasts will be cool, but elsewhere in the sunshine it will feel warm.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
The weekend will generally be cloudier with some patchy rain in places, especially on Saturday and particularly across the far southwest of England. Winds will gradually ease over the weekend so in any sunshine it will feel warm, away from the east coast.
