++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Some early fog is likely, otherwise it will be mostly dry and rather warm with sunny spells. However, cloud and light rain will move southeastwards across Scotland and N.Ireland during Saturday, with some heavy bursts in the northwest initially. That rain will reach northern England later and will be followed by showers.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

A band of cloud and occasional light rain will push south across England and Wales on Sunday. Further north will be more cloudy and showery. Fine in the south on Monday, but showers or rain elsewhere will become widespread on Tuesday with some strong winds developing too.
