Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

Rain across Scotland will fizzle out during the morning, before another band of heavy rain spreads into Northern Ireland and then western Scotland later in the day. There will be sunny periods and a few showers in northern and eastern England. Meanwhile, Wales and the south of England will be bright, dry and very warm.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

After early cloud clears on Wednesday it will be fresher and less warm than Tuesday but stay mainly dry in England and Wales. Thursday will also be mainly dry in the south. Showers are likely in Scotland and Northern Ireland on both days.
