Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Although much of the UK will start dry, cloud and spells of increasingly heavy rain will spread up to affect parts of southern England and Wales later. It should be brighter elsewhere save northern Scotland, with sunny spells for places such as the Midlands and Northern Ireland. Northern UK will see locally heavy and slow-moving showers, particularly over the Pennines.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Very unsettled to begin the working week, with some sunny spells but also scattered heavy and perhaps thundery showers. The focus of the heaviest showers should shift from southern UK on Monday to the west of the country into Tuesday.
