

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Monday 04 Sep 2017

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A cloudy and wet start this morning, with mist and fog in parts. Scotland and Northern Ireland will see outbreaks of heavy rain. A few brighter breaks may develop in places later, and it will feel warm. Tonight will be quite muggy with heavy rain for some, but it will be a drier picture in the northwest and southeast.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Tuesday will be cloudy for many to begin with outbreaks of rain, but this will clear later to leave a brighter, fresher day with the odd shower possible.
Wednesday will see sunny spells with some scattered showers in the north.

(C) Crown Copyright 2017. Published by the Met Office.