Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a frosty start for most with some patchy freezing fog, which will be slow to clear. Otherwise it will mainly be dry with light winds and lengthy sunny spells. However, the far northwest and southeast are likely to be cloudier and breezier with some scattered showers.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Thursday will be rather cloudy and often dry, however there will be some patchy light rain at times. Rain will then move southeastwards on Thursday night and Friday with colder, clearer conditions following into the northwest. There will be some showers too, these are likely to turn wintry over northern hills.
