Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Most places will be dry tomorrow with cloudy skies, though some brightness will develop at times, particularly in central and southern parts later. The cloud will thicken though and it will turn damp in N.Ireland by evening. Light winds at first but a little breezier in the west later.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Rain will cross most parts of the UK on Tuesday, with some heavy bursts likely too, and it could become windy for a time. Things become more settled again on Wednesday though with high pressure re-asserting itself bringing drier, if still rather cloudy, weather. Mild for the time of year.
