++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A chilly start in all areas but especially central parts, where there will have been an overnight frost. Central areas will then be mainly fine with sunny spells, but it will be cloudier in the southeast, where it will feel distinctly cool. Sunny spells for much of the north too, but some showers in the afternoon.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Monday will be cloudy with rain spreading to most areas through the day, but becoming a little drier and brighter in the west later. Tuesday will see further rain in the south of England and Wales and also in northern Scotland, but brighter elsewhere.
