Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Further heavy rain in the northwest will lead to some very large upland rainfall accumulations. Drier elsewhere, but rather cloudy across western parts of England and Wales. However, there will be some sunny spells, particularly across southeastern parts and to east of the hills; where it will be very mild. It will be windy across northern parts.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Rain will push southeast during Sunday, but weakening as it does so. Brighter and cooler conditions will follow from the north and the winds will ease. Turning wet and windy on Monday, particularly in the northwest, after a bright, chilly start for many.
