++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A wet start in many central and eastern areas with some further snow for a time over the northern hills. Drier weather, already over Northern Ireland by the morning, will spread to most other northern and western parts during the day. However, cloud and outbreaks of rain will continue to affect southeastern parts of England through the afternoon and evening.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
Many places dry and bright on Saturday after early fog and frost. However, outbreaks of rain may continue to affect some eastern coastal counties. Further showery rain is likely in the east on Sunday, most other parts dry and bright.
