Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Mainly fine and dry although there is a risk of well scattered showers, these will be more widespread across eastern Scotland where they could be heavy at times in the afternoon. Further south and east it will be drier with light winds and warm sunny spells.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
The rest of the bank holiday weekend will be largely fine and dry with warm sunny spells, especially in the south and east. However, on Sunday it will be cloudier across the far northwest with some light rain. On Monday some of this rain will turn heavy and slowly travel southeast.
