Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Early mist clearing to leave a relatively warm, muggy day with sunny spells for most areas. Showers are likely to develop quite widely in the afternoon, some thundery, with central and eastern Britain seeing the heaviest and most frequent of these. Southwest England and Northern Ireland may also see some heavy showers, while other areas stay generally drier.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

On Friday, central England and north Wales are expected to see heavy and persistent rain, with similar on Saturday in northeast England, likely leading to flooding in some areas. Elsewhere, still unsettled with more intermittent rain but some sunshine as well.
