Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A very windy start for most, with severe gales likely across northern Scotland. A band of heavy and squally rain will spread southeast across England and Wales, with brighter and more showery conditions following from the northwest. It will also gradually turn colder, except for in the far southeast.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Thursday will see a mixture of sunshine and showers, these perhaps heavy with hail and thunder as well as some strong winds. This will steadily ease later, leading to a drier and in places frosty start to Friday, however many will be fine with sunny spells.
