Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be windy again tomorrow with coastal gales, but winds will generally be lighter than today. Scattered showers are likely and may be heavy in places but they should be less frequent with a little more sunshine around. Some persistent rain is possible in the southeast of England later in the day though.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
It will become less unsettled, with winds easing. Showers will become less frequent too, although persistent rain is possible in southern Britain later on Wednesday. Thursday should be mostly dry and bright, and despite the mild feel, frost is possible in places overnight.
