

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 10 Dec 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Predominantly fine and dry with a good deal of sunshine. A scattering of showers though across Highland Scotland, and locally foggy across low-lying parts of Northern Ireland and Scotland during the morning. Largely dry and misty tonight with patchy fog and frost. Cloudier and breezier in the far west tonight, with some light rain for Northern Ireland later.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Cold and fair across much of the United Kingdom on both Friday and Saturday, with a risk of frost and patchy fog morning and night. Generally sunnier towards the west and far south, but occasional light rain for Northern Ireland on Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.