

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 04 Aug 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A mixture of sunshine and showers today, these locally heavy and thundery although there will be a lot of dry weather around too. Feeling less humid and becoming less windy for all, making it feel pleasant in any sunshine. Becoming dry overnight with some clear spells developing, making it chilly across the north.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Staying dry on Friday with plenty of warm sunshine and light winds, although isolated showers may develop for a time during the afternoon. Turning unseasonably windy in the north-west with outbreaks of rain or showers on Saturday, meanwhile in the south-east it remains drier with sunny spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.