Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Locally very windy today with gales, especially across Scotland and northeast England. Rain across Northern Ireland, Scotland, northwest England and northwest Wales today and overnight, the rain especially heavy and prolonged across west and southwest Scotland and also Cumbria. Elsewhere mild, becoming mostly dry after initial patchy rain and drizzle largely dies away, with perhaps a few cloud breaks developing.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Thursday rain temporarily clearing from western Scotland and Northern Ireland, while persisting across northwest England and northwest Wales. Elsewhere mild, generally cloudy, with occasional light rain or drizzle. Friday rain spreading to southeastern areas, with broken cloud and showers following.
