Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A bright, sunny start for most places today then cloud increasing with some showers developing mostly around the middle of the day. Remaining breezy throughout. Skies becoming clear by the evening in many places, but cloud gradually increasing from the west and a little rain developing in western areas during the night.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

A very mild day Tuesday, after a chilly start in the north, but fairly cloudy with morning rain. Heavier rain in the west late in the day and winds strengthening. Rain, locally heavy at first on Wednesday, easing during the day to showers then mostly clearing.
