++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Sunday will start on a wet and windy note in most areas with some heavy rain in places. The rain will become increasingly confined towards the far northeast and extreme southeast of Britain during the day. Elsewhere sunny spells will develop, although scattered heavy and blustery showers are also likely in the west, with gales developing in the northwest.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

A succession of low pressure systems will dominate the weather across the British Isles on Monday and Tuesday. These will maintain the current spell of rather cool, often wet and sometimes very windy conditions, with gales continuing to affect exposed areas.
