++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Early cloud and mist across eastern England and eastern Scotland, will quickly burn back to the coast through the morning. Elsewhere it will be a fine and largely clear start, with plenty of sunshine. Another fine and dry day follows, with it feeling very warm in the northwest, although a little less hot than recently in the east.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

Most places are expected to stay dry with long sunny periods, although some low cloud and mist will affect eastern parts. It will then become hot and humid again from the south on Monday, with a low risk of isolated thunderstorms later.
