

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 08 May 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Outbreaks of rain in Southeast England will clear during the morning. All parts will then have sunny spells and blustery showers, which could be heavy and thundery in the north and west. Further showers are likely in the north and west overnight, but elsewhere it will become dry.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Rather cloudy on Saturday in the north and west with occasional showers, but the south and east should be dry and brighter with some sunshine. Rain across Northern Ireland and Northern England on Sunday but elsewhere it should be dry with some sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.