++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Much of the United Kingdom will be fine and very warm for much of today, before scattered thundery showers break-out in the south and west from late afternoon. Remaining grey and misty near the North Sea coastline. Warm and sticky tonight with scattered heavy showers or thunderstorms across England and Wales, though largely dry across western Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:

Remaining warm and showery across the United Kingdom, though generally breezier and less warm than on recent days. The showers heavy and locally thundery, especially in the west, though still with some sunshine. Driest, brightest and warmest across eastern Britain.
