Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be another day of sunny spells and showers although there should be fewer showers through the afternoon with more sunshine. Winds will be strong initially but will also become lighter through the day. Winds will ease further overnight, leading to a cold night with frost and ice. Further showers, possible wintry, may still western areas and southeastern England.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Many areas will enjoy lighter winds and more sunshine on Monday but there will be some showers, mainly in the west. Heavy rain and strong winds will affect all parts on Tuesday once again with showers following from the west.
