

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Monday 05 Oct 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Rain continuing to move northwards. Warm and humid conditions following with scattered showers, heavy and possibly thundery at times, perhaps a longer spell of heavy rain in southeast England. Windy in the west and the northeast later. Further showers or longer spells of rain overnight. A very mild night for most.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
Staying unsettled on Tuesday with showers or longer spells of rain across the UK, heavy and thundery at times. Warm and humid. Breezy for most, with gales in the northeast. Rain will clear away eastwards during Wednesday, becoming drier and brighter from the west.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.