

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Wednesday 10 Aug 2011

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Cloudy in central and northern areas with occasionally heavy rain, especially over western hills. South Wales and southern England will be mainly dry with brighter intervals. Feeling warm. Strong, gusty southwesterly winds, lighter over Scotland. Cloudy with occasionally heavy rain overnight, except far north of Scotland where it will be mainly dry. Misty with fog over western coasts and hills.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

On Thursday, mostly cloudy with further rain, this heavy especially in north. Some brighter intervals possible in south, and in north of Scotland where it will be drier. Mainly cloudy with rain on Friday, this more persistent and heavier overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2011. Published by the Met Office.