

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 04 Aug 2017

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Scotland seeing early rain clear to sunshine and showers today. Some showers elsewhere, heavy in places, though many southern parts remaining dry throughout. Some showers persisting overnight, but clear spells likely too. Meanwhile, further, more frequent showers look set to spread across Wales through the early hours.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Sunshine and showers on Saturday too, with heavy and frequent showers across central counties. Hail and thunder is possible, but the showers will generally fizzle away during the late afternoon. Sunday will see a bright start. However, isolated showers will develop by day, whilst rain will arrive in the northwest later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2017. Published by the Met Office.