Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Cloud and outbreaks of rain across western areas will steadily move east, clearing all but northeast Scotland by the afternoon. Ahead of this, it will be warm and humid across eastern England, but cooler, fresher air will follow on. Showers will also return to many western areas through the day.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Showers for a time across the south on Friday, but elsewhere it'll be drier ahead of the next band of rain and strong winds set to move in from the Atlantic. This will cross all parts on Saturday, with sunshine and showers following on, these showers mainly in the northwest.
