Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Aside from the odd shower at first across the far north of Scotland, Sunday looks to be a dry day across the board. Where it starts off cloudy, some sunny spells should develop. Conversely, where it starts off clear, some cloud will build up, but all in all, with light winds it should feel pleasantly warm.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:
More sunshine should develop as we move into the new working week and as winds swing round to the south or southeast, temperatures will climb across many areas. Locally hot conditions are possible across inland parts of the south by Tuesday.
