

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 06 Sep 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Northern and western Scotland and much of Northern Ireland will be cloudy with patchy rain. One or two showers will also affect Norfolk and Suffolk. Elsewhere it will be dry with some sunshine. There will be a cool northwesterly wind. Overnight it will be mostly dry, albeit rather cloudy. During clearer spells it will turn chilly, with local fog forming,.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

There will be a lot of dry but cloudy weather around tomorrow. Some sunny spells are still expected, although the east could catch a shower. It will continue mostly dry, but often cloudy during Tuesday. The wind will turn southeasterly.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.