

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 09 Mar 2012

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A rather cloudy but mild and mostly dry day for many parts. However, rain will affect some northern and western areas at times, but this easing through the day. A mild and rather cloudy night for most with some further light rain or drizzle in the west. Windy throughout across the north.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
Mainly dry and mild over the weekend, but often rather cloudy, perhaps giving some patchy drizzle in exposed western parts at times. Meanwhile, central and eastern areas should stay dry throughout, also seeing the best of any sunny spells making it feel very mild locally.

(C) Crown Copyright 2012. Published by the Met Office.