++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Wintry showers moving west across the south on easterly winds, dying out overnight, with snow giving a slight covering in southeast. Becoming frosty, and with ice in the southeast. Staying dry with sunny intervals in the south but feeling very cold in easterly winds. Generally cloudy with patchy rain elsewhere.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Mainly dry but rather cloudy through the weekend, although there will be some brightness in the south on Saturday. It will turn less cold from the north through the weekend as cloud and patchy rain spreads southwards. Breezy in the far north and east. There will be patchy frost overnight.
