Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
After a chilly dawn for some, a fine day will follow with sunny spells. It will feel warmer than Wednesday with lighter winds. However, cloud will thicken across Northern Ireland with outbreaks of rain arriving here from late afternoon onwards. This rain will also push into western Scotland through the evening.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Fine in the south and east for much of Friday with warm spells of sunshine. However, cloud and rain will continue to affect northern and western areas. There will be a mixture of sunny spells and showers on Saturday, although outbreaks of rain may push into western parts later.
