

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 02 Dec 2007

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Northern Ireland and northern England, mostly cloudy with rain at times. Central and northern Scotland mainly dry with sunny spells, but some rain in the south. Wales and the rest of England, very windy with gales in exposed places, but early rain clearing to scattered showers and some brighter spells. Tonight, most places becoming dry with winds easing down.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Apart from showers near northern and western coasts, dry on Monday with sunny spells, but turning wet and windy again overnight. Tuesday then mild but cloudy and windy with rain and drizzle at times, most of the rain in the north.

(C) Crown Copyright 2007. Published by the Met Office.