Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a generally cloudy start with some light rain, although most of the UK will remain dry. However more broken cloud will gradually spread from the northeast, allowing sunny spells to develop away from the far south and west. Despite any sunshine it will feel cooler for most compared to recent days.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Sunday will be mostly fine after a rather chilly start, however northern Scotland will be generally overcast with some light rain. Monday will be a cloudy but mostly dry day across the UK however the northeast is likely to see some persistent and occasionally heavy rain.
