

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter at 0700 on Sunday 10 May 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Scotland and Northern England, sunshine and showers, some heavy with thunder.
Northern Ireland sunshine and generally light showers. Wales and central England, mostly cloudy with rain or showers in places. Southern England should remain dry and mainly sunny. It should feel warmer than recently. Tonight, becoming dry, but with increasing easterly winds in the south.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Monday, dry and mainly sunny once patchy low cloud clears and becoming warm away from eastern coasts. However, strong easterly winds are likely in the south.
More sunshine for northern areas Tuesday, but rain spreading northwards to southern areas accompanied by very strong easterly winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.