Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a bright start across much of the UK, although a few early fog patches are possible. Western parts, however, are likely to see increasing amounts of cloud, with outbreaks of rain arriving later. Eastern parts, on the other hand, are likely to remain generally fine and warm, but also with the outside chance of a shower.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Monday will see a mix of bright spells and showers. These showers are likely to merge into longer spells of rain in the north, before spreading southeast. This rain should clear during Tuesday morning, with cooler, showery conditions spreading in behind.
