++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain will spread eastwards across the UK during the morning and early afternoon, turning very heavy for a time, before quickly clear Northern Ireland and then Scotland later. It will be very windy for most with gales or severe gales in many areas, although winds will ease through the afternoon where rain clears.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Lingering rain will clear the southeast of England on Friday morning leaving it drier and brighter for most, although some showers are still possible particularly around western coasts. Further heavy rain and strong winds will push in from the south on Saturday.
