

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 02 Oct 2007

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Scotland, Northern Ireland, northern England, dry with some sunshine after early fog, but western Scotland and Northern Ireland clouding up. Wales, central and southern England mostly cloudy, a little rain or drizzle in places. Tonight, central, southern and western parts mostly cloudy with occasional rain or drizzle. Eastern Scotland and northeast England dry with clear periods but patchy fog reforming.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Dry with some sunshine over northern Scotland but for much of the UK a cloudy day is expected with some more persistent rain spreading to western parts later. Thursday, overnight rain clearing eastwards then most places dry with sunny periods.

(C) Crown Copyright 2007. Published by the Met Office.