++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
The south of the UK will be cloudy with outbreaks of rain through today. On occasion, particularly in the west and later the south, the rain will turn heavy and sometimes more persistent. Further north there will be a few brighter spells, but showers across most of Scotland. Overnight the rain will become heavy over a wide area.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

On Thursday morning there will be heavy rain lying from Northern Ireland into southern Scotland and northern England. Further south it will be cloudy with outbreaks of rain. Friday will see the cloud and rain clearing away to become fine and dry.
