++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A rather murky start is expected with extensive low cloud and hill fog. There will be patchy rain or drizzle but many areas will stay largely dry and it will feel warm and humid in any brightness. Heavy and persistent rain will move into northwestern areas through the day, accompanied by a strengthening wind.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
Much of England and Wales will have a wet start on Tuesday but this rain will clear through the day to leave fresher weather with sunshine and showers. It will be showery across northern and western areas into Wednesday but largely dry and bright elsewhere.
