Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

Any low cloud will burn away to leave another largely fine day. There will more cloud around than of late and cloud will thicken across the far west through the afternoon but it should remain dry. It will be breezier but it will remain very warm, particularly across central and eastern areas.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Rain will spread east overnight, clearing all areas through Saturday morning. Thereafter, it will be fine in the south and showery in the north, but fresher for all. Rain will affect central areas on Sunday with showers in the north but it should be mainly dry further south.
