

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Wednesday 08 Apr 2015

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
A bright and cool start to the day. Any mist and fog patches should burn back to coasts readily through the morning, meaning we will see warm, prolonged sunny spells. However patchy cloud will affect the southeast and far northwest through the day. Top temperature 20 degrees Celsius (68 F).

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

It will be another cool, bright start to the day on Thursday but temperatures will soon recover. Bright skies for all and it will feel warm outside in the sunshine. Friday will be mainly dry and fine but thicker cloud and rain will move in from the west overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2015. Published by the Met Office.