Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a bright start to the weekend for most with plenty of long sunny spells developing through the morning. Cloud will thicken from the northwest into the afternoon though. This will herald the arrival of rain here and a strengthening wind.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Sunday will be a blustery day for all, with gales likely along western coasts. Rain will affect southern counties at first, easing through the morning, and outbreaks of rain will linger in the northwest through the day. For most it will be a dry day though with some sunny spells.
