Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Some sunshine is expected early on in northeastern parts of the UK. However, cloud and patchy rain will continue to spread across most parts through the day. The far north of Scotland should stay largely dry and bright. It should become drier, although humid from the southwest later, with fog developing around southwestern coasts.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Warm and humid, although often cloudy on Wednesday and Thursday. There will be some rain at times, particularly on Thursday, when it may turn heavy and perhaps thundery in places, especially in the north of the UK. Light southerly winds will pick up through Thursday afternoon.
