Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Early cloud and rain will clear southeastern England through the morning to leave a bright and breezy day for many with some prolonged sunny spells. There will be some showers, heaviest and most frequent across northwestern parts, with the risk of hail and thunder in places too. It should feel pleasantly warm across southern areas in the sunshine.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

As pressure builds across the country, most areas will see plenty of fine weather, although the far northwest will be cloudier with occasional rain. Despite warm temperatures by day, it will turn chilly overnight with the risk of mist and fog.
